News from the building work: The Refectory is all but finished now; the top tarmac layer went down today. We just need a couple of days and nights above 8°C so we can get the hard-wearing stone and resin floor down. All interior construction work is complete on the library extension; we are just waiting for decoration and new carpet. All of the remaining work is being done from the outside now so we will be using the spaces very soon (fingers crossed).
